- Do your patients ever ask you if they may record the consultation so they can refer back to it later, or share it with others?
- Do you think any of them have ever recorded a consultation without telling you?
- Would it bother you if they did?

In this Focus, a medical oncologist talks about how he felt when it happened to him, and asks whether clinics should adopt guidelines to protect the bond of trust between patient and doctor.

You can read the article here . Press the comment button at the end to share your experiences and views.

This article was first published in The Oncologist and is reprinted with permission © 2013 AlphaMed Press.